DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
 2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
 3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
 4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
3. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aguirre et al. US 5,656,680.

The claims are directed to a particular silica dispersing agent and its use in vulcanized rubber compositions. The elected specie of dispersing agent is dodecyl benzene sulfonic acid. The rubber compositions claimed include additional ingredients which are routinely used in rubber processing.

The Aguirre et al. patent shows vulcanized rubber compositions and is directed to processing aids and peptizing agents used as such. This patent identifies the claimed dodecyl benzene sulfonic acid (col. 10, lines 8-9) as the preferred peptizing agent.

The difference between the instantly claimed invention and the prior art is that the art fails to provide an example of each of the claimed ingredients used in the claimed amounts.

The instantly claimed invention is rendered prima facie obvious from the prior art because the incorporation of the dodecyl benzene sulfonic acid is suggested throughout the disclosure. The claimed rubbers are shown at column 10 lines 54-64. The use of the claimed sulfur as a vulcanizing agent is shown in the examples, TABLE 1 at columns 11 & 12. The claimed silica is shown at column 17, line 10. The use of the rubber compositions in tire applications is suggested at column 12, lines 31.

It would have been prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the shown ingredients in combination with one another as claimed given that each of the ingredients is shown and suggested to be used in combination with one another.
